

same look as onyx. Mehul explains that they vastly prefer using vitrified/double charge/digital tiles for floor and digital or larger tiles for bathroom walls.

What posed as a challenge to the duo was designing an apartment they would live in. "This project was different from the others because we were the client and the designer," explains Mehul. It was necessary to take into account create a design concept that every member of the family could relate with. "As we were two brothers taking decision for all design, it was equally important to relate our design with the concept of a home décor," explains Milan.

What stands out undoubtedly in the apartment is the chic use of laminates. With a temple in the living room and simplicity in the design, the Manek residence is a plush haven.
